SYSCO Purchases Land For Midwest Redistribution Center In Starke County

HOUSTON, Texas and HAMLET, Ind. (March 13, 2007) — SYSCO Corporation (NYSE: SYY), North America's largest foodservice marketer and distributor, and the Starke County Development Foundation announced today that they purchased land in Hamlet, Indiana for SYSCO's Midwest Cooperative Redistribution Center (RDC). This RDC is expected to create approximately 500 new jobs in the process.

SYSCO's affiliate, Baugh Midwest Cooperative, purchased 320 acres for its RDC and the Starke County Development Foundation purchased 24 acres to construct infrastructure. Onsite construction is expected to begin this summer and should require approximately 12-18 months to complete.

The approximately 700,000-square-foot operation will include freezer, refrigeration and dry storage, office space and a truck maintenance facility. Once the RDC is operational, it will begin supplying products to SYSCO's operating companies in the Midwest Region.

Starke County and the Starke County Development Foundation will provide infrastructure including roadway improvements, rail-spur, and water and sewer extensions, by using grants from the Indiana Economic Development Corporation Development Grant Fund, the Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs Economic Development Block Grant Program, the US Department of Commerce Economic Development Commission Grant Fund, Tax Incremental Financing Bonds and County Economic Development Income Tax to fund the infrastructure. Following construction, the water and sewer improvements will be owned and operated by the Town of Hamlet.

The RDC is the third site location of several facilities planned throughout the United States as part of SYSCO's Supply Chain Initiative. The first RDC, which began shipping products in February 2005, is located in Front Royal, Virginia and services 14 of SYSCO's broadline distribution companies in the Northeast Region. SYSCO's second RDC in Alachua, Florida, which is currently under construction, is expected to supply broadline operations in the Southeast Region.

SYSCO is the global leader in selling, marketing and distributing food products to restaurants, healthcare and educational facilities, lodging establishments and other customers who prepare meals away from home. Its family of products also includes equipment and supplies for the foodservice and hospitality industries. For the calendar year 2006, the company generated $33.9 billion in sales.
